

Intro

The study transcripts shall simplify cooperation and information-sharing between training authorities and participants.

It serves as verification for each training step.

Following the international training guidelines of TCI the participants design their individual curriculum.

The regional training committee of the responsible member associations, the training leaders or the instructors will give advice on individual questions.

Information on the Ruth Cohn Institute for TCI-international

The Ruth Cohn Institute for TCI holds the name of the founder of Theme-Centered-Interaction (TCI), Ruth Cohn. It is an umbrella association for regional RCI-institutes and professional groups.

On the one hand RCI-international is an international organization. People interested in the model of Them-Centered-Interaction as a kind of lively learning and working find orientation and a connection to others beyond regional, national and continental borders and throughout a variety of professions. Furthermore, the mission of RCI is to enhance and distribute this form of learning and working by the means of courses offered, by publications and through the development of the association's work as well as through the work of the skilled TCI instructors within their individual fields of profession.